

Altova to Present XML Content Editing Solutions to XML SIG Attendees

Beverly, MA, April 22, 2003. – Altova Inc. (<http://www.altova.com>), producer of XMLSPY, the world's leading XML development tool with over a million registered users, will present "Building Web-Enabled XML Content and Data Management Systems with AUTHENTIC 5 and XMLSPY 5" at MITRE's quarterly Technical Exchange Meeting in McLean, VA at 9:35 am. Technical Director, Larry Kim, will be highlighting XML content and data entry solutions with two of the IT industry's most popular XML tools, XMLSPY 5 and AUTHENTIC 5.

Altova was invited to speak at MITRE (<http://www.mitre.org>), a non-profit, federally funded research and development corporation which is partnered with the US government to support information and communications acquisition, and other engineering issues. The MITRE Corporation's mission is to address issues of critical national importance, combining systems engineering and information technology to develop innovative solutions. The XML SIG conference will be held from April 21-23, and has attracted some of the biggest industry giants along side Altova, including Altova technology partners Software AG and IXIASOFT.

"The presentation will focus on the XML content lifecycle and beginning with XML content modeling and authoring, through to content storage, publishing and syndication." said Mr. Kim. "Using technologies such as XML Schema, WebDAV, XSL/XSLT and SOAP/WSDL, in conjunction with the XMLSPY 5 development environment and the freely available AUTHENTIC 5 XML document editor, corporations and government agencies can realize standards-based XML content editing solutions which are more cost effective and powerful than older, proprietary content management systems."
